Indian gaming? Reed Ave. casino idea floated

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A California Native American tribe is pondering the idea of a "resort-style" casino complex on Reed Avenue in West Sacramento.

Representatives of the Upper Lake Rancheria tribe from the Clear Lake area are quietly making inquiries among the city's leaders and business community members to gauge issues that might affect the feasibility of an Indian gaming casino in West Sacramento. The tribe is in talks with a partnership headed by West Sacramento's Frank Ramos and Sacramento's Marvin "Buzz" Oates regarding the possibility of building the complex on 64 acres of the 84-acre Riverpoint Center project, said Dan Ramos, the owners' representative.

"They're interested in doing a large, resort-style development," Ramos commented. "From what I've seen so far, it is a very high-quality group. They're doing a little research in the community right now."

That research includes surveys of local opinion.

Ramos emphasized that the tribe is being extremely sensitive to the needs and concerns of the city as it decides whether to pursue the casino.

"They want to make sure the community wants them, and want to make sure they address the community's needs," he said.

Any deal to allow an Indian gaming center would entail an agreement with city officials to place the Riverpoint land into a trust, under federal jurisdiction as tribal land, Ramos continued. Such a deal would presumably include a contract with the city to provide services such as water and sewer service, and police and fire protection. It also could include agreements on sharing the revenue stream from the casino – and could financially benefit such agencies as local schools or the redevelopment agency, said Ramos.

"I've never seen anything like this before that could bring so many benefits with so few impacts," he added. "This is very intriguing."

He described the Upper Lake Rancheria Native Americans as a "landless tribe" that does not currently operate a casino. There are currently five such casinos already in the Clear Lake area, so it wouldn't make sense for the new casino to be sited in the same region.

The city's community development director, Stephen Patek, said yesterday that he had no information he could share on the proposal.

Mayor Mark Montemayor warned yesterday that the idea was still "very preliminary."

"They're sticking their finger into the wind, trying to gauge the feelings of the community," said Montemayor. "It seems they are very willing to work with the community. If they are that willing to work with us, you can bet your bottom dollar they are going to be willing to play a major role in our community and its dollar needs."

Montemayor said that his position on the casino idea is "just in seeing if there's enough support to get it onto the ballot, and in letting the people decide whether they want a casino in their community. There are strong opinions in West Sacramento going both ways, and there's really no kind of compromise position you can take."

He added that both he and the casino backers agreed that they would like to place the casino idea onto the local ballot – possibly next March – to provide an "advisory vote" for the city council.

"They don't want to go against the grain of the community," he said.

The Riverpoint Center is located southeast of the Harbor Blvd./Reed Ave. intersection in the city's northwest. It has previously been championed as a site for a "destination retail" center and for an auto mall.

Caffeinated or not, it's educational

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

You, too, may have a reason to go to school every weekday morning.

A class taught by a home economics instructor at West Sacramento's alternative Yolo High School operates an espresso and coffee-vending cart at the entrance to the school's cafeteria from 8-9 a.m. Although most of the caffeine-oriented customers tend to be faculty members, said class instructor Nancy Bruce, the public is welcome to drop by and buy a cup.

"It's a class called the Yolo Coffee Shop," she explained. "I have an espresso coffee cart that we purchased to do some job training. We teach students how to operate the cash register, how to make change, how to county money back, and how to operate the espresso machine."

Tenth-grader Mary Rose Claxton is among the four students now enrolled in the class – although Mrs. Bruce says she has had as many as ten kids in the past.

"I'm learning how to make coffee, how to treat people with respect and always have a smile," said Mary Rose. "I'm learning things every day."

The sophomore added that she hopes for a career as a police officer – and the "people" skills she is practicing as a coffee vendor seem to be helpful in that respect.

Mrs. Bruce said the class also operates a snack bar "because not a lot of students drink coffee." The students bake some of the goods they sell at the snack bar, including cookies and muffins.

Where does the money go from the espresso sales?

"We use it mostly to keep the program going," said Mrs. Bruce. "I want to buy some more teaching materials with it as well, so the students can do some more in-depth studies about the food service industry. It's a natural for us in West Sacramento to send students to work in Sacramento for the food service jobs there. I'm really trying to get them into hotel work – there are just so many options."

The espresso cart is located near the outside entrance to the cafeteria off of Westacre Rd., near the James Marshall preschool facility.

EVERGREEN AVENUE AREA:

Gunfire exchange with police leaves 16-year old dead

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A West Sacramento teen is dead after reportedly shooting at both construction workers and police at the corner of Evergreen Ave. and Sycamore Ave. shortly after midnight Friday night.

Statements from the West Sacramento Police Dept. indicate that Raymond John Santos III first approached workers at a drainage canal at that location at about 10 p.m. on Friday. Construction workers called police by cell phone, reporting that Santos was carrying a rifle, had a knife clenched in his teeth, and "was behaving strangely." Santos was gone when police arrived. Officers and a police dog searched the wooded area nearby for the suspect, but did not find him.

At about 12:30 the same night, one of the workers again called police and reported that Santos had returned and fired rounds from his rifle while confronting them. Officers arrived and "there was an exchange of gunfire" in which Santos was shot. He was taken to UC Davis Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead.

No one besides Santos was hurt in the exchange.

Police are not releasing the name of the officer who shot Santos, but said the officer is a 27-year old male who has been with the department for 18 months. The officer is on paid administrative leave – a routine procedure following such shootings. Both the West Sacramento Police Department and Yolo County District Attorney's office are investigating the shooting.

Santos was reported by the Yolo County Coroner's office as a 16-year old.

Tips to keep Halloween scary-- but safe

With witches, goblins, and super-heroes descending on neighborhoods across West Sacramento, the West Sacramento Police Department offers parents safety tips to help prepare their children for a safe and enjoyable trick-or-treat holiday:

* A parent or responsible adult should always accompany young children on their neighborhood rounds.

* No treats are to be eaten until they are thoroughly checked by an adult at home.

* Only go to homes with porch lights on.

* Carry a flashlight with you, so you can see and be seen easily.

* Keep away from open fires and candles. (Costumes can be extremely flammable.

* Agree on a specific time when revelers must return home.

* A good meal prior to parties and trick-or-treating will discourage youngsters from filling up on Halloween treats.

* Remain on well-lit streets and always use the sidewalk.

*If no sidewalk is available, walk at the farthest edge of the roadway facing the traffic.

* A mask may keep you from seeing well. Take off your mask before crossing the street.

* Cross only at corners. Never cross between parked cars or mid-block.

* Be cautious of animals and strangers.

* Drive carefully on Halloween Eve. Excited youngsters may forget some of these safety rules and dart out in front of your car.

* Adult partygoers should establish a designated driver.

Finally, should you suspect any treat your child received has been tampered with, please call the West Sacramento Police Department at 375-6474. With a little extra thought, you can make sure that all children have safe outings on Halloween.

West Sac boxing champ Willie Jorrin accused of new assault

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Legal troubles may not be over for Guillermo "Willie" Jorrin, West Sacramento's national boxing champion.

Jorrin was sentenced to three years' probation and 360 hours of community service two weeks ago after being arrested for domestic violence inflicted on his live-in girlfriend. Judge Michael Sweet noted at the time that the World Boxing Council super bantamweight champ had no prior criminal record other than a "vehicle matter."

The "vehicle matter" was a February, 2000, hit-and-run incident in West Sacramento in which Jorrin's car allegedly raced into a parked car, and Jorrin fled the scene. Charges related to the incident appeared headed for dismissal.

But last week, West Sacramento police received a complaint from a man named Antonio Mojica that Jorrin had assaulted him on Oct. 2 – when Jorrin was awaiting sentencing on the domestic violence offense. The alleged victim said that Jorrin had hit him numerous times, and that the victim sought medical treatment following the incident. The incident reportedly occurred on Solano St., but not at Jorrin's nearby home.

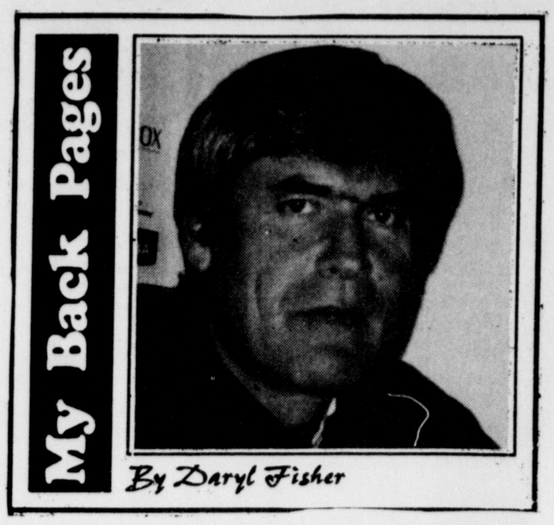
Local police said yesterday that they expect to forward their report on the Oct. 2 incident to the Yolo County District Attorney's office.

No one answered the phone at Jorrin's home or at the office of Jorrin's attorney yesterday morning when the News-Ledger called to request comment.

After Jorrin was sentenced on the domestic violence charges, Jorrin's promoter Don Chargin was quoted by the Sacramento Bee as saying "if (Jorrin) had gone to jail, he may have been stripped of his world title."

Jorrin has a fight tentatively scheduled for December at Arco Arena.

A subscriber suggests interesting way to win the war



As this country's war on terrorism moves into its second month, there seems to be quite a few more questions than there are answers. That, of course, is to be expected considering the fact that the enemy, in the words of the new Homeland Security Director Tom Ridge, is "A shadow enemy, shadow soldiers, people who have no regard for human life."

But even so, it seems to me that at a minimum, the following half-dozen questions can be legitimately asked:

(1) Although as I write this the anthrax outbreak has now reached the State Department and a number of new East Coast post offices, and although the bacteria sent to Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle's office turned out to be more sophisticated and dangerous than the kind used in an earlier assault on a New York newspaper, and although three people have tragically died from anthrax, why is it that the whole darn country seems to be almost paralyzed by our first (and unlikely to be our last) encounter with bio-terrorism? And does the news media bear some of the responsibility for the much of the irrational fear which has resulted from its obsessive reporting on the subject?

(2) When is anyone in the position to do something about changing things going to suggest that the country in general, and our politicians in particular, open up a meaningful dialogue which will at least address the simple question, "Why are these idiots idiots, and why are they willing to throw away their young lives in despicable actions that take the lives of innocent civilians? I mean, is there something we don't know about them and their way of looking at the world that we should know?

(3) How long can we really expect the richest country on earth to keep bombing the poorest country on earth without it becoming a public relations nightmare?

(4) Do we really think we can get at bin Laden and the human garbage which surrounds him without putting troops (and lots of troops) on the ground?

(5) Will U.S. cargo jets dropping hundreds of thousands of food ration packages over Afghanistan really make a public opinion difference in the eyes of the people who find them? The last I heard, the packages included such things as peanut butter and jelly and the Afghans were feeding them to their donkeys.

(6) And why is it again that the Vice President of the United States is in hiding?

On the lighter side, although no one seems to have the perfect plan for bringing the terrorists in Afghanistan to justice, a longtime News-Ledger subscriber did e-mail me something she recently saw on the Internet which just might be one possible solution, and it is reprinted below:

Simply take all American women within four or five years of menopause and give us some training for a few weeks and outfit us with automatic weapons, hand grenades, some decent looking gas masks, moisturizer, and plenty of tins of canned tuna. Then drop us (parachuted preferably) all across the landscape of Afghanistan and let us do what comes naturally. Think about it. Our anger quotient alone, even after doing all the standard stuff like grocery shopping, cooking, cleaning, and paying all the bills, is formidable enough to make armed men tremble.

We've had all our children and we would gladly suffer or die to protect them and their future. Most of us would like to get away from our husbands for awhile anyway, if they haven't already left, and for those of us who are single, the probability of finding a good man with whom we would like to share the rest of our life is about as likely as getting struck with lightning.

So we have nothing to lose. We've survived the water diet, the protein diet, the carbohydrate diet, the grapefruit diet, and we've been in gyms and saunas across American without ever losing a pound. We can easily survive months in the hostile terrain of Afghanistan with no food at all!

We have also spent years tracking down our husbands or their lovers in bars, hardware stores, and sporting events, and finding bin Laden in some cave would be no problem at all!

And as for uniting all the warring tribes of Afghanistan in a new government, oh, please, we've planned seating arrangements for in-laws and extended families at Thanksgiving dinner for years. We understand tribal warfare.

Between us, we've divorced enough husbands to know every trick there is when it comes to how they hide and launder money, and how they cover up hidden bank accounts and other money sources. We know how to find that money and how to seize it, too -- with or without the government's help.

So let us go fight. The Taliban hate women. Imagine their terror as we crawl around like ants over their godforsaken terrain. I'm going to write my congresswoman. And I think you should, too.

Preventing 'crib death'

October is SIDS (Sudden Infant Death Syndrome) Awareness Month and the Yolo County Fetal Infant Mortality Review Team is taking advantage of this opportunity to remind parents, grandparents, and childcare providers of ways to reduce the risk of SIDS.

What is SIDS? SIDS is the sudden and unexplained death of an otherwise healthy baby under the age of one year. Sometimes known as "crib death", SIDS is a leading cause of death in babies from one month to one year of age.

No one can predict which babies will die from SIDS. There is no known way to prevent it, but we can reduce the risk by doing the following:

1. Always place babies on their backs to sleep, even for naps.
2. Place babies on a firm surface to sleep, such as on a mattress in a safety approved crib.
3. Remove soft, fluffy bedding and stuffed toys from babies' sleep areas.
4. Make sure babies' heads and faces remain uncovered during sleep.
5. Do not let babies get too warm during sleep.
6. Encourage mothers to breast feed.
7. Encourage parents to get healthcare during pregnancy and regular checkups and immunizations for their babies.
8. Encourage parents not to smoke or expose their babies to second-hand smoke.
9. Talk to all parents and caregivers about placing babies on their backs to sleep and providing smoke-free environments for babies.

For more information call the Yolo County SIDS/FIMR Team at 530-666-8645, or 916-375-6380. The California SIDS Program can be located at 1-800-369-SIDS,

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

The Arizona Diamondbacks dynamic pitching duo of Schilling and Johnson overwhelmed the mighty New York Yankees in the first two games of the 2001 World Series. In game one of the series Schilling beat the Yanks 9-1 giving up only 3 hits. The "Big Unit" took over the next night to toss a 4-0 shutout over the boys from New York limiting the powerful Yankee lineup to only three hits. Now the World Series shifts back east to the house that "Babe Ruth" built for the next three games. The Yankees head back to New York having been out scored 13-1 by the Diamondbacks.

The Yankees are faced with a must-win situation in game 3 and also face the history of the book of the World Series that no team has ever comeback from 0-3 to win the Fall Classic. Could this be the team that writes a new page in the history book?

The Sacramento Kings open up the 2001/2002 season at home on Tuesday, October 30th against Seattle and then will enjoy three days off before they travel to Denver on Saturday night (6 p.m.) to play the Nuggets. The Kings will then return home for just one game on Sunday, November 4th (6 p.m.) against the San Antonio Spurs and then head to the East Coast to play four games in five days against Cleveland, Indiana, Orlando and Miami. Sports fans have to love this time of year with the NBA, NFL, NHL, NCAA Football and the World Series all in the same month!

The 49ers (4-2) missed out on a golden opportunity to share first place with the division leading Rams. The Niners couldn't hold on to a 19-point lead against the Bears last Sunday in the windy city of Chicago. "Da Bears" stunning 37-31 overtime thriller left the Niners in shock. The 49ers coaching staff paid dearly for their decision to kill the clock in the fourth quarter and play prevent defense. The 49ers play selection in the fourth quarter was intended to use up the clock but the Bears ended up scoring 15 points in the final 4:08 to force the game into overtime. The 16-second overtime period set a record for the fastest in NFL history. It was the Niners third OT contest this season with Garcia and Owens deciding the final score. This time it was Owens who bobbled Garcia's throw into the hands of Bears defensive back for a game winning interception. Next week the 49ers (1:05 p.m.- FOX) will host the Detroit Lions, who are still-hunting for their first win of the season.

The Oakland Raiders (5-1) defense took care of Donovan McNabb and Eagles to win a lopsided 20-10 game over Philadelphia. The Raiders running backs combined for 202 rushing yards against what was suppose to be a tough Philly defensive unit. The victory gives the Raiders the AFC's best record and a one game lead over San Diego (52) and two games over their next opponent Denver (4-3). The Raiders and Broncos will lock helmets on the Monday night of the week in Oakland.

Last week a lost all three of my weekly picks to put me back at .500. (10-10-1). The Chargers didn't cover the eight points against the Bills and the Lions failed to win their first game of the year and on Monday night the Titans were crushed by the Steelers. In week 8, I like Atlanta (-3) at home against New England and the 49ers (-9) over Detroit. On Monday night I have to take Denver (+6) and the points in what should turn out to be a close game and probably the game of the week.

Trick or Treat - See ya next week!

TOURING with TEDDI

Happy Halloween to all the little goblins out there! Trick or treat!

Talk about an extensive menu – Bakers Square on Harbor Blvd. can match the biggest of them, plus "the best pies in America." The flyer on the table mentioned 17 kinds, plus an assortment of berry pies. When you order dinner, you get a choice of soup or salad, as well as your entrée. The choice last Tuesday was a broccoli-cheese or vegetable beef soup. Our waitress, Darlene, got a little confused and forgot our soup. I really would have liked to try the broccoli-cheese – oh well, maybe next time.

Poor Darlene was most apologetic, and even arranged for a rebate of part of the check (as well as my 10 percent senior discount). Our service otherwise was great.

Bakers Square rates very high in cleanliness, especially their restrooms. As you enter, the firrst thing that greets your eyes is a refrigerated display case. With some of the most luscious pies and cakes to start your mouth watering, you will check in and find some souvenirs of your visit on the counter: key chains, miniature figures, sun catchers, stuffed animals, Halloween goodies and more.

I had the pork chops with brown gravy, mashed potatoes and a really fresh mix of vegetables. It was good, except the gravy was too strong – made me think perhaps it was old. My companion had pork chops also, but his were Portobello, and he said they were much better chops than mine. Of course, they cost a dollar more. Here is a fast rundown of their extensive menu:

Appetizers, $5.29 to $6.29; Soups and chili, $2.59 to $3.49; Salads, $6.49 to $7.29; Burgers, $5.99 to $6.99; Melts, $6.39 to $6.99; Pitas, $6.89 to $6.99; Focaccia, $6.29 to $6.99; Sandwiches, $4.69 to $6.79; Homestyle Classics, $6.99 to $8.99; Bakers Specials, $6.29 to $7.89; and Pasta, $6.69 to $7.89.

All of the above come with a senior discount of ten percent. Of course, you can also get coffee, tea, beer or wine.

All in all, I would recommend you try our Bakers Square. Be sure to ask for Darlene and let her know she isn't the first harried waitress to forget an item – but she certainly was apologetic and very gracious about it.

Last week, we said a sad farewell to Brenda, the bartender at the Westside Pub & Grill in West Sacramento. This week, we wish to extend a warm welcome to Michelle, the new bartender. Drop in and introduce yourself!

Don't forget that November is the month for pheasant at Morrison's Restaurant in Woodland. Stuffed breast of pheasant filled with a mixture of the dark meat combined with shallots, herbs and pine nuts. It is then roasted and served sliced with a wonderful red currant game sauce. You won't want to miss this delicious fall treat.

Morrison's: (530) 666-6176 for reservations.

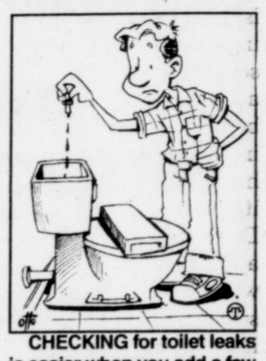
Try These Toilet Troubleshooting Tips

(NAPS)—A toilet that gurgles, burbles or squeaks is crying for help. But why? Experts point out that deciding which repair to make can be tricky. So, the best way to start is to check for leaks.

Here's an easy check for toilet tank leaks from Fluidmaster's distinguished expert, Professor Flush:

1. Remove the toilet tank lid, then flush.
2. After the flapper or tank ball drops and as the tank refills, add a few drops of dark food coloring to the tank's water.
3. Wait 20 minutes without flushing.
4. If any trace of color appears in the toilet bowl, there's a leak at the flush valve, related to either the drain seat or flapper/tank ball.

If a leak is revealed, check the drain seat of the flush valve. If it's cracked or corroded, replace the entire flush valve unit (which will also include a new flapper).



CHECKING for toilet leaks is easier when you add a few drops of dark food coloring to the tank's water.

If the drain seat looks fine, the culprit is probably a worn flapper or tank ball. If so, replace it with a new flapper.

Juniors and Seniors tie for first place in Homecoming; royalty crowned

By Shalini Sumeshwar and Esthela Duran
Staff Writerss

On Monday the school was flooded with turquoise, as the class of 2005 made their presence at River City known. Their screams cut through the early morning cold, as we all heard the chants of the freshmen. They surprised us with fresh lyrics, which they had obviously created themselves, and the group made it clear that they are here and ready to cheer. Ms. Costanza commented, "This freshman class is the best, spirit-wise, that I've seen in years."

However, no matter how much spirit a freshman class has it is usually no match for eager sophomores, trying to establish territory. The class of 2004 barraged the campus with purple streamers. The class officers truly put forth an enormous effort to organize the campaign in the middle of the quad, showing their "purple power".

The real competition began on Wednesday. The juniors left us in awe as they pulled off the traditionally senior prank of a decorated car parked in front of the school gates. Students were greeted by a green 4x4 as they entered the quad towards the collage of green students.

But nothing could stop the seniors. Come Thursday the school was overflowing with bright orange. Uniformed in their senior t-shirts, they hollered at the top of their lungs, and made their status known.

At the end of the week, we once again united at the Homecoming Rally. The underclassmen created humorous skits addressing the difficulties of high school. The senior skit illustrated their joy in finally graduating.

The rally was supposed to be a celebration, and to be especially momentous was the Senior Walk. But the celebration turned into childish acts of vulgar exchanges. Students began throwing back the candy that the seniors were tossing. It was disappointing to many seniors that one of the most memorable moments of senior year had to be spoiled for no good reason.

Ms. Costanza added that she was "disappointed in the behavior of some students during the Senior Walk." She admits that the rally was not organized as well as it should have been, pointing out the difficulties of segregating the freshmen an sophomores across the football field."

Typically, seniors win the homecoming competitions, but when the points were totaled, we learned that it was a tie! Juniors had caught up to the seniors. The point tally will be continued toward the next rally.

As expected, sophomores came third, followed by the freshmen.

Continuing in the theme of school spirit came the Homecoming floats. Everyone helped toward making their class float the best, following the Island Fantasy theme.

Mermaids and mermen sat on the freshman float sporting Raider jerseys, glaring at other mermen from Union Mine. The class of 2004 placed an erupting volcano in the middle of their float representing the force of the Raider team coming down on the Diamondbacks. Juniors put together a spectacular green sea monster carrying a Union Mine jersey, showing that the Raiders are dominant, and leaving the Diamondbacks at the bottom of the sea. Finally, the Senior Island made its appearance, consisting of relaxed Raiders basking in the defeat of Union Mine with a score of 99-0.

The music was loud and the lights were flashing as many River City students danced across the gymnasium on October 6. Students came to celebrate their Homecoming dance.

The theme was Island Fantasy. Students stepped into a gym filled with palms, fishnets and shells that fit the theme perfectly.

Soon after the dance began it was time for royalty to take the dance floor. King Francisco Rodriguez had the honor of dancing with Queen Sarah Fields. Prince Tyler Geivett and Princess Amanda Carriker joined them. Duke A.J. Saucedo and Duchess Amanda Peterson were there, as well. Count Heath Hernandez and Countess Cecily Daniel also joined the royalty in a moment they will not forget.

Homecoming concluded at midnight when it was time for students to wait in line in check out their shoes, which students thought was too complicated.

"It took forever to get my shoes," said Ruby Guzman. Many students felt the same way. Tiffany Ladd said the lines were too long.

She added, "I think homecoming was a great turn out and it was well coordinated."

Building to be completed in December

Bang! Bang! Boom! Boom! This is what we've been hearing during class for the past weeks since school began. The reason is that a new two-story building is being built to alleviate the overcrowding River City. Although the date has been pushed back many times it should be done sometime in December. The building will cost approximately $2.5 million and it was paid with bond money and the school's safety grant. The building will contain four English, three math, and three social science classrooms.

Another new addition to the school is surveillance cameras which are used to help prevent fights and vandalism of the school. The camera's videotape will be shown as evidence to students who have gotten into a fight so that they cannot lie about what happened in the fight or who started the fight or why. There is a monitor in the front office which is pretty obvious, and there is also a monitor in Mrs. Broxton's office.

Raider Pride Night a success

The first annual Raider Pride Night was a big success. The classrooms, gym, quad, and library were full of dozens of presentations and demonstrations, including French club videos, math websites, weight room workouts, jazz band, selections, drama, skits, the Book Fair and vocal music, among others.

Mrs. Broxton said, " It was a wonderful, positive, upbeat gathering. Teachers really valued it, and there was a lot of collegiality."

In general it was a good surprise to see how many people showed and how much our people really enjoyed it. Thank you's go out from River City's administration to all who made the first Raider Pride Night the best.

High school exit exam results for class of '04 mixed

By Shalini Sumeshwar
Staff Writer

Remember last March when groups of anxious freshmen were bussed downtown to take the first-annual, California Exit Exam? The long-awaited results are finally in.

Students beginning with the class of 2004 must pass a High School Exit Exam to receive a diploma. The exams test teens for competency in math and English.

The sessions last March did not run as smoothly as hoped, but eventually students were placed on the correct buses, seated in proper sections, and tests were taken.

The two tests took approximately eight hours to complete. They consisted of basic algebra, English comprehension and writing skills. English/AVID teacher Mr. Ferris was a supervisor and admitted that "This first time was a little rocky, but we're working on improvement."

In the basic math skills section, of the 344 freshmen who took the test, 122 passed, or 35%, leaving the other 65% to try again this year. The results of the English portion are better. Out of 344, 203 passed, nearly 60%. Current sophomores wishing to learn their results can do so through their counselor at any time.

Test adviser and counselor Mr. Don Allan agreed with most teachers and students in saying that the tests weren't taken as seriously as they should have been. "Passing results were lower than hoped," he said, "but if more students would study that can change."

Originally students were supposed to take the tests beginning their freshmen year in high school. But as we have been recently informed by the Vice Principal, Ms. Broxton, freshmen will no longer be given the opportunity to take the tests. Instead, seven periods are being required to be taken by all freshmen and sophomores to help them better prepare for the tests, and they will be given the tests during their sophomore year in high school.

This does not affect the retests that will be given to last year's freshmen who did not pass. They will be given the opportunity to take the re-take in March.

River City student Andrey Dykan takes part in National Youth Leadership

By Shannon Rivers Holme
Staff Writer

Andrey Dykan, a senior at River City High School, was one of 400 lucky students to participate in a program this summer called The National Youth Leadership Forum.

He was able to partake in this extremely prestigious event because he was nominated by our very own science department chair, Mr. Logan, for being a great student, a potential leader, and showing an interest in the field of medicine.

"He was obviously very interested in pursuing a medical career. He was very serious about it. He was one of the hardest working students I had. [Sending all the paperwork] would definitely be an effort well spent," said Mr. Logan of Andrey.

The program is run in five different cities including Washington D.C. where Andrey went. The National Youth Leadership Forum (more commonly called NYLF) promotes youth leadership, specifically focusing on the fields of medicine, law, and government. Andrey's forum was in the field of medicine.

Asked what he liked best about the forum, Andrey replied, "We got hands-on experience. We got to hold, and sometimes use, modern tools that doctors use, as well as see various medical schools and various fields of medicine."

The participants were able to experience things first hand, and were able to ask professionals questions.

This was the best exposure for these young adults. Andrey thinks it is an excellent experience and something he will never forget.

Does he have any advice for people who are going into NYLF? "Be prepared to challenge yourself to think differently." Great advice, Andrey!

Two RC students Hispanic students of the year

By Esthela Duran

The Yolo County Consilio Mexicano of Woodland named Erica Medina and Erik Rodriguez Hispanic students of the year on October 13 at its annual dinner and dance celebration. This award was based on their grades, school involvement, and community service.

"I was very happy that my whole family was able to attend this event considering that on many occasions we can't all be together for various reasons. My parents were very proud and happy for me. My mom started crying," Erik exclaimed. He added that he was very nervous and felt intimidated by the other award winners who, "When they announced my name first I hugged my mom and then the rest of my family. As I was walking forward I was shaking. I was excited to receive this award and was proud of myself," Erik said.

Erica Medina said, "My parents were proud and happy to find out I was getting this award." "When they announced my name, I was happy and proud of myself," said Erica.

Day of surprise attack on America to live in infamy

By Bryon Groesbeck

September 11, 2001 will now be remembered not for the ending of summer, or the start of another year of school, but as a day of terror. We were all taken by surprise, young and old alike. Nobody could ever fathom such a terrific attack on the United States of America.

Coincidental or not, I couldn't sleep very well in the early hours of the morning. I woke up several times, but the last time was about 6 o'clock when my mother's dramatic voice cried, "Planes are flying into the World Trade Center!" I jumped up and jogged into the living room just in time to see a replay of the second plane careening to the south tower. Shock. The only way to describe it.

The time I would usually be leaving for school, yet another passenger jet plowed into the Pentagon. Then, moments later, the south tower collapsed. Sometime later the remaining tower fell. Not only did we lose tens of thousands of lives both at the Pentagon and the World Trade Center, but firefighters, police officers, and rescue workers have been lost as well. As important as they are, lives are not the only things that were lost. The World Trade Center housed many investment firms and financial companies. Destroying those may have cost America millions of dollars.

Cowardly bullies will never scare anyone. I, certainly, am not scared of spineless terrorists that have the nerve to attack America.

President Bush was in Florida ready to give a speech on education. He immediately boarded Air Force One and was escorted to safe locations as soon as the attacks had happened. One thing that he said in one his speeches stuck in my mind, "Freedom itself was attacked this morning by a faceless coward, and freedom will be defended . . . God bless America."

I heard chatter and incriminating words such as "bombs," "crashes," "terrorists," and "World Trade Center." I knew what they were talking about, but remained silent. I didn't really want to get into a discussion about it then. One thing did stir some emotion, though. That emotion: anger. Anger toward ignorance. I heard immature children saying things along the lines of "Yeah, we're in a war!" or, "Man, we gotta go bomb 'em. I ain't fightin' in World War Three!" Honestly, I wanted to punch them in the teeth. It made me sick to hear that from an American. What kind of people am I really surrounded by? It made me wonder: Would these juveniles risk their lives to defend our country? Are today's children being raised without respect for the freedom that are born with, or the awesome power that our country possesses?

Cowardly bullies will never scare anyone. I, certainly, am not scared of spineless terrorists that have the nerve to attack America. September 11, 2001. In history books from now on. In lectures from professors from now on. In the hearts of Americans from no one. September 11, 2001. A date that will live in infamy. A date that will be remembered.

River City rally insensitive to tragedy's remembrance

By Ivy Branaman
Editor-in-Chief

September 14 should have been a solemn day everywhere in America. President Bush declared it a National Day of Remembrance and Prayer in honor of everyone and everything that was lost in New York City, southeaster Pennsylvania, and Washington, D.C. three days earlier. It was a day for all Americans to mourn the loss of lives, buildings, money, and American invincibility. National and religious leaders gathered at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. for a service in remembrance of September 11's events. Organizations across the nation responded accordingly and respectfully. Weekend sports events were cancelled, as was the Sunday night Emmys. Everyone seemed to need time to mourn; awards and games just didn't seem appropriate.

Here at River City, though, we had a rally on September 14. After fourth period, River City's student body filed out to the football field for the first rally of the year. With a brief speech from Mr. Geivett, the rally began. Looking around, I sadly realized the school was not coming together as Mr. Geivett had suggested. We were seated separately according to our class and to further distinguish the division among the student body most students were wearing their class color. We were not unified. The rally was just like the countless others in previous years. Goofy class games and skits were performed. Mr. Geivett's brief speech was the only acknowledgement of the the events. Students cheered their classes on as if America and each of us were unchanged. Many of us, I am sure, did not want to be there.

The rally would have been acceptable if it really had been on of unification. Students should have been encouraged to wear red, white, and blue and the football field should have been decorated with red, white, and blue. Speeches concerning the event should have been made and songs like "I'm Proud to Be An America" would have seemed more appropriate than the pop and disco songs played at the rally. The school could have handed out little American flags. The fact remains that River City didn't do any of the above and didn't encourage school unity.

The school's insensitivity, however, should not come as a surprise. After all, they had disallowed students from watching the aftermath of the Attack on America unfold on television in school that day. No reason was ever given for that decision from the superintendent. The Attack on America is the biggest event of my time and World War II veterans have said it is the biggest event of their lifetime, making it bigger than Pearl Harbor. It was a historical even and River City students were deprived of the privilege of watching it unfold. American history that will be read about in history books fifty years from now could have been watched on television by River City students. I believe it is a disgrace to our school and community. I feel embarrassed for our superintendent because he didn't allow us to watch it. There is no reason high school-aged students should not have been allowed to watch the aftermath of the events. Our class sat aghast in disbelief as our teachers read us the note and turned off the television; we proceeded to listen to the events unfold on the radio.

Only Friday did our school take a moment of silence for the victims, not at the rally. A moment of silence should have been taken on September 11 and each day afterward. It was almost like it was too little to late. River City only confronted the issue three times while school was in session. All of the things River City did and didn't do are disrespectful, and insensitive to the tragedies' victims and memory. The rally and not allowing us to watch the events unfold on television are completely offensive and reprehensible. I am ashamed of my school and believe I am not alone.

RC students respond to September 11, 2001

River City students as well as most Americans were deeply affected by the Attack on America. River City student shared their reactions to the September 11 attack.

Sophomore Farishta Hassenpur remarked, "Even though it was really sad, the country shouldn't blame it all on the Muslims because most consider themselves Americans."

"It was an act of ignorance. Taking innocent lives would make us just as bad as them," sophomore Jennifer Hoffman responded.

Senior Tim Parmley commented, "Too much media is making people depressed. We don't have a choice about going to war."

Tegan Coffin, a sophomore, stated, "I am tired of hearing about it. We're going to war. There's nothing else we can do."

"I think we should just go to the Middle East and find who ever did it and kill them and if we don't find them, find every other terrorist group and shoot them," junior Roger Emigh said.

Sophomore Daniel Read commented, "I think we should shoot whoever did this and whoever else knew about it."

"I felt speechless. I couldn't believe it happened," junior Christina Soto remarked.

Senior Anthony Cardenas stated, "It was an act of cowardness. Justice should be served no matter what the consequences are."

"I felt sorry for the victims and their families," freshman Zac Smith responded.

Freshman Summer Petrey said, "I think it is hecka messed up because not only did innocent people die, but also most of them were people who made this world a better place and I think it's sad that little kids lost their parents."

"The people did it behind our back. They used our principles of freedom and democracy to their advantage. Everyone that was involved should watch out because Bush isn't messing around. I'm glad Gore isn't in office," senior Heather Bennett responded.

"I didn't believe it at first. It was very surreal. I felt very helpless and a lot of sadness. When I got to the school in the morning, all of the teachers sat in the parking lot for about 10-15 minutes listening to the radio. It was all really hard to take in," teacher Ms. Hatz remarked.

Senior Soraya Cuevas commented, "I think the United States will punish the criminals for this horrendous attack in New York. However, I hope this terrible event won 't bring terrible consequences like a third world war."

"I feel that it was very uncalled for. They are just jealous because America is wealthier than they are. It's really nice to see America coming together and donating money to help the people in New York. I think it was a very emotional experience for everyone," said sophomore Michelle Adrulewicz.

Senior Andrey Dykan said, "It was a terrible cowardly act. We should act responsibly in how we handle it."

River City Muslim students feel misunderstood, not harassed, by peers; Islam really 'peaceful religion'

By Ivy Branaman
Editor-in-Chief

September 11's terrorist attacks shocked and temporarily crippled our nation. The terrorist attacks also incited finger pointing against American Muslims and Arab-Americans. Sadly, within a few days of the attack, reports of hate crimes against American Muslims and Arab-Americans surfaced.

Islam is being used as the reason for the atrocious crimes Osama Bin Laden and the Taliban allegedly orchestrated. Unfortunately, some people do not understand the Islam religion or that being Muslim doesn't make an individual a member of the Taliban.

River City's diverse student body includes Mexican-Americans, African-Americans, Asian-Americans, Arab-Americans, and Muslims. While the United States prides itself on the unity of its citizens, some Muslim students at River City feel harassed and misunderstood. Students agree that there has been no drastic or dramatic change in Muslim students' treatment, but there is a different attitude.

"I haven't [experienced prejudice] because nothing happened to me, nothing is different, except people calling me Osama," junior Mozamel Ysufzai explained.

River City's Muslim Student Association's [MSA's] membership is half the size it was last year according to its President, Noreen Hassan.

"It [the attack on America] did affect Muslims because we're kinda' scared," Noreen asserted, "Some people might be scared to say they're Muslim."

When RC principal Mr. Geivett spoke at the rally and told RC students that "it's the wrong thing to point fingers [at people]." It appears, though, that not all students heard the message like Mr. Geivett had hoped.

"They're saying it's under our religion and its not. They're saying killing under our God, Allah, is right, but you're not supposed to kill anyone, and if you do, you go straight to hell."
~Noreen Hassan

The taunting and teasing is disturbing to many Muslim students and some non-Muslim students including junior Lanna Kalista. "It upsets me to see other students looking down on Muslims and Middle-Eastern people and harassing them," she remarked.

Islam, Noreen Hassan feels, is also greatly misunderstood. The Taliban is using Islam as the reason for hijacking the planes and describing the terrorist attack as a holy mission. However, according to Noreen killing is against the Islam religion.

"They're saying it's under our religion and it's not. They're saying killing under our God, Allah, is right, but you're not supposed to kill anyone," Noreen asserted, "and if you do, you go straight to hell. The religion Islam is really a peaceful religion."

In Islam there are five duties, according to Noreen. The first is to always believe in Islam; the second is to pray five times day; the third is to fast during the month of Ramadan; the fourth is to be charitable; the fifth is to go on a pilgrimage to the mecca in Saudia Arabia where their God's house is. Muslims read from their holy book, the Koran; their God is Allah.

According to senior Jamal Hassan, Islam means "peace" in Arabic.

"I feel that it's unjust [for people to assume the attacks were under the name of Islam] because Islam is really about peace," he stated.

Afghanis may be even more misunderstood and teased than Muslims. Noreen asserted, "Afghanis may be scared, too." Most people in America are scared, but few feel like they need to defend their religion. Fortunately, Muslims at River City seem to be misunderstood, not persecuted.

Noreen, like many people, is not ashamed of who she is or what her religion is and adamantly stated, "I am proud to be Muslim."

'Heartbroken,' Ms. Carlisle reacts to September 11 terrorist attacks

By Esthela Duran
Staff Writer

The terrorist attacks that happened on September 11,2001, affected the whole nation, not only New York. Many friends and relatives were affected by this attack. Here at River City, U.S history and government teacher Ms. Carlisle says like many other people in this country, she was affected.

As many of her students know, Ms.Carlisle use to live in Manhattan, which is exactly where this attack took place. However, as soon as she heard the news, that wasn't her biggest concern. She said, "My biggest concern was on a personal level. My best friend lives in New York and travels through the World Trade Center every day. What I was trying to do is figure out if she was safe." Fortunately, later that night she found out her best friend was safe. Luckily she did not have to go by the World Trade Center on this particular Tuesday morning.

Ms.Carlisle, who says she's a true patriot and loves this country, was shocked to hear something like this could happen to the U.S. "Like many people my feelings were going up and down. Truly, I was heartbroken," she said. And like many people she couldn't believe it was real.

Many students are asking for her opinion on what's going to happen next. Maybe it's due to her knowledge of history that everyone is aware of.

"Well, I don't have a magic crystal ball or anything like that, but there are some things that I think will happen and change," said Ms.Carlisle. "I think that this incident will be described in the arts world wide, we will hear it in music, see it in film and paintings," she said. "I also think that the images will be permanent in our consciousness," she added. She also thinks that security will definitely change in airports, and that it will be a permanent change.

"I don't know exactly, what's going to happen next. I think it's all going to be a covert operation. I believe many terrorist leaders will be eliminated. I know the U.S. will strike back. I don't know exactly when, but we will, to satisfy all Americans," was Ms.Carlisle final statement.

Student finds meaning of patriotism in horrific attacks

Millions of Americans woke up Tuesday morning, September 11,2001, to learn that our nation had been attacked by terrorists. Four commercial planes were hijacked by anywhere from four to eight terrorists per plane.

The terrorists were armed with box cutters and small knives. Two of the planes flew into the World Trade Center's twin towers. Another plane was crashed into the side of the Pentagon building. It was later concluded that Air Force One as well as the White House were also a target. The fourth and last plane was turned back around while over Ohio, when four brave Americans attempted to take control of the plane. The plane crashed into Pennsylvania shortly after.

Suddenly I feel like wearing red, white, and blue. I smile, inside, and out, each time I see a passing car or house holding an American flag. I am deeply moved by this horrific event.

These cold, heartless terrorists believed that by bombing the hearts of our economic and military powers, the American people would become weak and crippled. Instead, the American people are standing strong as a nation. We all are standing together to mourn the death of many thousands of innocent Americans who were killed in this vicious attack.

The people of my generation have never experienced such a tragedy before. Many of us now have to face the fear of our friends and family being drafted into war. Afghanistan is harboring the terrorist responsible for this horrible act, and despite the President's warning and threat of retaliation. The chances of our young men being drafted into war are growing stronger with each passing day.

I never thought that anything could move me quite like this event has. Suddenly I feel like wearing red, white, and blue. I smile inside, and out, each time I see a passing car or a house holding and American flag.

I am deeply moved by this horrific event. I am truly grateful to be an American. I feel that my feeling of freedom, and patriotism has been taken for granted all my life. I never knew the true meaning or feeling of patriotism before that event occurred.

The event of that day unleashed some very strong emotions in me. I am sad and I mourn the loss of my fellow Americans. I feel great anxiety over the threat to our freedom and to our nation. And for this first time in my life, I feel united with my fellow Americans. I cannot foresee the outcome to all of this, but I feel that as a nation, we will stand united and strong. I am proud to be an American.

Country unsafe; put faith in government 'to do the right thing'

By Esthela Duran

"Oh my god, are we going into war?" is exactly what came to my mind as soon as I heard that the U.S. had been attacked. Of course, at this point I didn't know all of the details and facts. I heard different parts of the story during the school day; however, it wouldn't be until later in the afternoon that I would know the complete story. As I watched the news I understood that it had been a terrorist attack and that there is no country to blame at this point; therefore, there isn't a reason to go into war like we did after Pearl Harbor.

As I listened to the president's speech, so many things came to my mind that are even hard to explain in words. I know one of the many things was, "what will happen next?" I mean, at this point we still don't know who it is; furthermore, we don't know if he has anything else planned. However, my mind kept wondering about the person who was behind this, simply because it was a horrible attack that it makes people wonder what kind of person he/she is and what was the motive if there is one. One thing I wonder about the terrorist is how he came up with this plan? As I saw the images on television and I saw a map of the events online, it's sad to say, it was a perfect plan, a plan that unfortunately worked.

Of course, deep inside I was feeling sympathy for all the victims and the relatives they left behind. The people that died were innocent victims, victims of someone who has no conscience. I don't know who this terrorist thinks he is and what gives them the right to kill people. He makes me sick.

I think this matter affects everyone, maybe not at this particular moment in time, but we don't know what's going to happen next. Until we find out who is responsible for this, in my opinion, we're not very safe, yet we must move on and trust the government to do the right thing.

September 11, 2001

America the land of the free.
But after today it may not be.

I questioned once before.
But after that I said, "no more."

I let go of all the bad.
That is what made me glad.

I listened to my history lessons and thanked God
I was not there.
Now this day in history we must bear.

W all need to understand.
That all it takes is just one man.

I just thought now our Life could end.
And now we have to mend.
Think of how devastated people there must be.
All the things we do not see.

People losing the ones they love
Everyone paranoid from what's above.

Most of us feel the sorrow
Wishing it would all be over tomorrow

But still I don't understand.
In fact, I never did how any human being can kill a man, woman or especially a kid.

Our Voices

September 11, 2001 is a day that will be remembered by all Americans. Thousands of lives were lost in the Twin Towers and hundreds more on the hijacked planes. America was in mourning and a state of shock. Just one week after the tragic events, Review staff members responded to Attack on America.

Events hit close to home

I think that too many young people shook off or didn't care at all about the events that occurred in New York and Washington D.C. I'm not saying that people should have been depressed all day, but they do have to look at it in a somewhat serious manner. Not only was this an attack on New York and Washington, but also it was an attack on our whole country.

Even though this event happened all the way across the country from us, it still hits close to home for some. Everybody says nothing like that could ever happen her but these events proved that you just never really know. I'm sure when the people of New York woke up that morning they didn't think anything like that would happen to them, either.

Many families here were also affected because all four of the hijacked planes were on their way to cities in California. This event was shocking and amazing knowing that our generation has just witnessed history in the making. I know that one day we will make the person responsible for this pay and I have faith in our nation that this event will only bring us together and make us stronger.

Attacks leave 'us stunned and vulnerable'

A week ago, this was impossible. An attack on America? No way. But contrary to the feeling that most River City students, not to mention Americans in general, have, this is not a dream or a joke. It is very true, and very rattling.

The first thing that pops into my mind is a lump of questions: How did this happen? Why did this happen? Who is responsible? What will we do? And most important, who is next?

The panic that is flowing through the country is the panic that nobody thought this possible, yet we have been harshly brought back to Earth. Americans take for granted that this country, compared to others, is relatively peaceful and secure.

This event leaves us feeling stunned and vulnerable. No one knows when, where, or even if this is going to happen again. No one knows who is responsible either; many believe that Palestinian or other Middle Eastern terrorists may be responsible.

The hardest thing to deal with is the lack of knowledge. In this day and age knowledge is definitely power. Without knowledge, we have no understanding of this tragedy, making us powerless against this fear.

Suspicions of who is responsible for this are arising and fear is growing. When will our questions be answered? I guess we just have to wait in our state of panic to find out.

Americans should sit back and chill

On the morning of September 11, I woke up and turned on the news and saw the south tower of The World Trade Center fall down. I did not realize the seriousness of the whole thing until I got to my first period class when the T.V. was on in the classroom and I saw the WTC footage again. I also saw the Pentagon footage and I saw how extreme the damage was.

Then in my history and Administration of Justice classes we watched the news for a while. I really do believe that Osama bin Laden did this and I think that we should retaliate. However, I also have a thought from another point of view. Even though this would be hard on us we should sit back and "chill." Then they would not want to attack us again because they would see that they did not affect us. That will not happen, though.

Anyway, I stand behind the actions of America and President Bush.

By Daniel Wilson

Country should unite 'with a common tragedy in all our hearts'

When America awoke the morning of the second Tuesday in September, none of us expected the tragedies the day would bring.

Yet as we arrived to work and school, slowly informed of the horrendous attacks upon New York, one question burned in all of our minds and hearts: Why? What could provoke one to cause so many deaths, to tear apart so many families, to frighten so many children? I wish I knew the answer.

The mere idea of one group having the immense power to cause so much anguish is inconceivable to most of us, but now it has been witnessed, by a generation which seemed impossible to penetrate.

After the smoke cleared and emotions are calmed comes the time to point blame and plot revenge. Every American is prepared to unleash hell upon the terrorists who have caused this ghastly event, but are we a little too eager?

At this point we have identified suspects, but there has yet to be a nation that claims partnership with them. Across the country we, the younger generation are told that the race and religion of the attackers should not be identified with our neighbors.

Many communities are making special efforts to illustrate that our nation is not prejudiced, that we the younger generation don't blame those of the same nationality or religion as the attackers for their horrid actions. But somehow evil never ceases to exist. Narrow-minded individuals are walking the streets, blaming anyone of Middle-Eastern descent for the actions of a group of corrupt men who have no relationship whatsoever to them. Incidents such as in Seattle, where a Muslim woman and her children were egged in a supermarket because of their religion are probing that perhaps we Americans are not as accepting as we think.

The most frightening thing I have experienced form the attack was the attack on the West Sacrament Sikh Temple. It had never occurred to me that such hatred could occur so close to where we live. But one thing I am very proud of is the extreme understanding here at River City.

My descent is from a land which is often mistakenly classified as the same as the terrorists'. I am proud to say that here at school there have been no incidents blaming Middle-Easterners for others' actions.

The events of September 11 are sure to be inscribed in the minds of all those who were here to witness it. We can do nothing now but unite as a country, a country of many cultures, of many beliefs, with a common tragedy in all of our hearts, and begin the process of healing.

Varsity football 1-2 in league

By Manorma Umaria
Staff Writer

Varsity football is 1-2 in league after losing to Dixon 14-6 on Friday. Interviewed earlier in the season, Rene Castro said, "This year hasn't been too good for our varsity team. We've lost some games we should have won; yet, I don't feel our record reflects our skill, but our attitude. We just have to keep playing football! I think we need to work tighter and quit making such critical mistakes on the field. If we cut back on penalty yards we could be a successful team."

Douglas Riggs said, "I think the pre-season wasn't too good but after our first league win, I think it will turn around. I think some people can practice harder. That includes everyone on the team."

Raider head coach is Mr. McIntyre, and the assistant coaches are Mr. Yarwood, Mr. Hunter, and Mr. Mattos. The players for the 2001-2002 seasons are Nick Avila, Easy Byard, Patrick Bobo, Shawn Brown, Rene Castro, Jason DeMars, Michael DeMars, Jose Duran, Brad Engle, Maiuu-Sam Floyd, Andrew Harris, Justin Hunt, Jeremiah Hunt, Cody Jaramilla, Miguel Jimenez, Jeff Jones, Marc Magdaleno, David Maldonado, Greg Mistler, Tony Molina, Mike Nelson, Michael Ono, Clency Pulido, Jeff Renno, Francisco Rodriguez, Erik Rodriguez, Douglas Riggs, Sean Young, and Sean Ynostroza.

The varsity's next game is against Vanden here at River City on November 2.

Former Raider football standout plays division one level at Sacramento State

By Ivy Branaman

"You basically have to prove yourself," Mohammad Warrad explained. Walking onto a division 1 college football team is not easy. Warrad, a River City class of 2000 graduate who was known as Mo Salman in high school, did just that at Sacramento State. "He has to show he can play football like a scholarship guy and work a little harder," Warrad further explained.

He began playing football in his freshman year at River City and fell in love with it. "Football teaches you to deal with things in a positive manner and to work hard and not give up; hard work football team and never had any doubts. "I knew I could play at division one level," he said. will be rewarded at the end," Warrad stated. Coach Baker, he said, played a part in instilling that love of football in him. "He really got me into it. It's the way he expresses himself and his desire," Warrad explained.

> "Football teaches you to deal with things in a positive manner and to work hard and to not give up; hard work will be rewarded at the end."
> ~Mohammad Warrad

His first year of college, Warrad planned to attend Sac City and even practiced with their football team for three weeks before making the decision to transfer to Sac State. "I worked hard in high school to get accepted to a four year college and I thought I might as well as go straight there," Warrad said. Playing on a division Warrad, academically a sophomore but a freshman in football terms, will receive a scholarship in two years. Right now he is on full financial aid.

"Mr. Sanborn and Coach Ferris told me teaching was nothing but good stuff," he recalled. Because of them, Warrad is majoring in social science and plans to be a high school history teacher.

"He was a good student and he's a good person," Mr. Sanborn commented. "He worked very, very hard, especially in football. I'm very happy that he's successful, but not surprised."

Warrad plays on the defensive line as a nose guard and cites his most intimidating moment as having to go against Terry Wagner, an all-American center who may play in the NFL. Warrad, though, held his own. "In high school, I was stronger than everyone, but in college everyone is big and strong. In college what matters is your technique and that you're faster," he said.

Warrad is one of four children raised by a single mother. "My dad skipped town and she took care of four kids on her own," he recalled. "Three of her kids are now in university. She suffered through some hard times and came out like a diamond."

J.V. football wins first home game

By Krystle Parkison

J.V. football made its first home game a victory, and it would be one of many more to come. Their record now stands (6-2) in the season and (3-0) league. They came out victorious in their games against Natomas (21-19), Center (14-12), Union Mine (14-6), Marysville (29-6), Lindhurst (54-34), and Dixon (47-0).

Though the boys have suffered two losses, they are still working hard.

"We don't have a lot of players, but we are working very hard as a team," commented Head Coach Stolpe. "The guys are disappointed in their losses, but they are working harder in practice and determined to win the championship."

Coach Stolpe has the help of his assistant coaches, Coach Johnson, Coach Santos, and Coach Bandu.

Ricky Bandu also feels good about the work his team has put in this year. "The cooperation on this years team is outstanding. This is the strongest team we've had," said Ricky.

Ricky's teammates include, Joey Avalos, Ricky Bandu, Mario Cardenas, Luis Duarte, Nino Freitas, David Hall, Jeff Hope, Vincent Inzunza, Ramon Martinez, Justin McAmoil, Malakai Mumui, Garett Peterson, Daniel Read, Justin Renno, Carlos Santos, A.J. Saucedo, Rhett Stenback, Jason Tucker, Danny Zonneveld.

Boys soccer working on improvement

By Shalini Sumeshwar
Staff Writer

The soccer season has begun! Coach Restivo and Coach Villegas are prepared to mold a new bunch of soccer hopefuls into varsity material. The teams are set, 20 on varsity and 14 for JV. Varsity players are Izzi Mashriqi, Danny Beus, William Clayton, Michael Westervelt, Stephen Repace, Pablo Contreras, and Marco Madrigal, all seniors. Juniors are Ivan Font, Tyler Geivett, Andrew Harris, John Ahmad, Patrick Farnworth, Elvis Hernandez, and Rasul Afzili-Pele. Four sophomores made the cut: Ryan Westlake, Shalvin Prasad, Kevin Cheechov, and Antonio Hernandez. Two freshmen are on varsity this year, Adrian Villegas, and Richard Novoa.

Junior varsity players are Hasib Abdali, Mike Cagle, Lorenzo Lara, Julio Solorzano, Frank Magallanes, Matt Matteucci, Shahab Razq, Matt Dwyer, and Julio Ramirez, all of whom are sophomores. The remaining Raiders, all freshmen, are Paul White, Nat Olivan, Jose Luis Solorzano, Ryan Chadwick, and Nestor Sanchez.

The two teams have played 16 games this year; so far, varsity has won one, JV two. The teams say their goal at the present is to improve their individual skills. Varsity player William Clayton claims that the losses don't bother him much. "The point is we have fun doing it!" he said. Unfortunately William will not be able to finish the season due to a broken ankle he suffered during a recent game. But that's not going to stop the rest of the team from pushing themselves; there's a game today. They could use the support of a few dozen screaming teenagers, so go out and cheer!!

J.V. volleyball powered by teamwork

By Shannon Rivers Holme
Staff Writer

There's no doubt these young women love volleyball. The J.V volleyball team has the determination. They have the motivation. Don't think just because their season hasn't been perfect they are giving up, but as Miriam Lopez pointed out, "It's been a hard but fun year".

"It's not all about winning and losing. We are accomplishing more than that," said Rosa Verduzco.

Teammate Chelsea Farnworth added: "We have come so far since the beginning of the season, both with skill and pulling together as a team."

As you can tell, teamwork is a major part of this volleyball team.

"We just try to work together," team member Natalie Blacklaw commented.

Even though their season hasn't been filled with victory like they had hoped it would be, there have been a lot of close games and a lot of hard work.

"As the season has progressed, we have just worked a lot harder. Not only in games but in practices as well," added Rosa Verduzco.

Other members of the team include Breanne Oliphant, Lily Franco, and Erin Gereghty.

If you are ready to see determined young ladies playing their hearts out, go out to Lincoln on November 1 and support your Lady Raiders!

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial:

Calling all classroom sleuths

Here's a challenge for a local school classroom studying social studies, history or government:

Identify a prominent West Sacramento site in need of being recognized as an official historic site, or in need of historical preservation, and then seek that official recognition.

The city and the West Sacramento Historical Society recently gained the city's first local historical site recognition for the old Washington Firehouse in the Broderick area. For West Sacramento, such homage to the past is long overdue. There are certainly plenty of other spots in town we need to rediscover and to mark for the future.

As a "very preliminary" plan to bring an Indian gaming casino to West Sacramento is quietly floated, it's interesting to contrast West Sacramento's potential reaction to the proposal with the reaction nearly ten years ago to a proposed upscale private cardroom on West Capitol Ave.

Having just passed ordinances greatly restricting cardrooms – and watching with relief as a couple of seedier establishments closed – local city leaders were near-unanimous in opposing the 1992 cardroom plan. When the issue was placed on the ballot and lobbied heavily by its backers, residents, too, voted it down in a landslide.

But 2001 is different from 1992 in West Sacramento. The city has drawn regional respect and recognition for its riverfront development, most prominently Raley Field and the former Money Store building. Former mayor Christopher Cabaldon led the city in some "bridge building" as well with other communities in the region. The result is that – although the city's business district and southern region haven't changed as much as some would hope – West Sacramento now has more respect in the Sacramento region.

The city's inferiority complex, and the close link of the city's name with crime, drugs and prostitution, have both waned.

Whether a casino is now a good idea remains to be seen. And, in fact, the proposal may not make it far enough to force West Sacramento to make that judgment call. But what seems certain is that such a proposal wouldn't face the same intensity of opposition that the backers of the 1992 cardroom initiative ran into.

Letters to the Editor

The Port is your ally

Last week Ms. Jacobs complained of rail activity near her home. In her letter she left every reasonable reader with the impression that the Port is actually the railroad company, the cause of rail problems and uncaring of its neighbors.

Quite the contrary, the Port is very sympathetic to the concerns of Ms. Jacobs and her neighbors. However, readers must also know that the Port neither owns nor operates the railroad. Union Pacific Railroad owns the equipment, hires the personnel and operates the railroad. Although the Port owns the tracks, it is the Union Pacific that runs the railroad.

As owner of the tracks and on behalf of Ms. Jacobs and her neighbors, the Port has repeatedly called, written and petitioned the Union Pacific Railroad to operate with greater care for Ms. Jacobs and her neighbors. In most instances, our calls and letters also go unanswered. The rail problems persist, continuing to annoy and aggravate Ms. Jacobs, her neighbors, and the Port.

While this letter may serve to clarify who is responsible for the problem, it does not solve the problem. Therefore, the Port enlists the community and its leaders to join with Ms. Jacobs, her neighbors, and the Port in getting the Union Pacific Railroad to mind its manners when doing business in West Sacramento. Ms. Jacobs, I'm sorry you must suffer this problem. I respectfully encourage you and your neighbors to redirect your ire at the Union Pacific Railroad, and allow that the Port is your ally in this struggle.

Power plant thoughts

At the October 17 West Sac City Council meeting, the last item on the regular agenda, "Workshop on proposed Ameresco 250 Megawatt Peaker Plant at the Port of Sacramento" (to generate electrical power) seemed more controversial than the earlier discussion on the same subject held at Southport Elementary School. As to why, I offer the following points discussed on October 17 that were not talked about earlier: (1) the earlier group was told that the new plant would serve electrical needs of the equivalent of some 280,000 homes while on October 17 the public was told this would be only a peaker plant, planned to operate by 5% of the year, or 500 hours (enough to serve only the Port of Sacramento and its real estate expansion?); (2) from 100,000 to 250,000 gallons of West Sac's first class treated river water per ten-hour day would be required (according to staff, this concession would virtually eliminate local river water (allocation) reserves and expansion of our water treatment plant would take at least two years). Put another way, no new construction for over two years if the plant were allowed!

So at the earlier meeting, we were given that "280,000 homes equivalent" (output capacity) selling point while on October 17 the proposed plant was described as only a 250,000 megawatts output while operating at 5% of its capacity. And while I don't recall water usage by the proposed power plant being discussed at all during the earlier meeting, not their proposal includes, Allocate to us the balance of your treated river water for at least 2 years". Does Shasta Dam require purification of Lake Shasta water prior to using it to generate its electricity? Or is that purity so essential for producing hydrogen power, like those zero-polluting buses from Canada have as their fuel? (But Ameresco officials had stated that "high pressure natural gas would be brought to port area.")

Could it be that all of that pure water is needed for some other desired development on Port of Sacramento sellable land? Is someone trying to revive the paper recycling plant idea? (Na-a!)

Finally, since the Port of Sacramento belongs to Sacramento and is governed by a Sacramento majority board, maybe a formula stating, "Twice the water needed for the power plant should be piped to West Sacramento at Sacramento's cost." This would parallel the agreement both sides have on the sewage treatment issue: West Sac avoiding having to build an expansion of plant in exchange for allowing something of greater benefit to Sacramento (through) here.

Thanks!

I want to express my profound gratitude to all of the Sacramento area residents who demonstrated their commitment to the community's health by walking in the American Cancer Society's Making Strides Against Breast Cancer Walk at the Capitol on October 21, 2001.

Together, 12,000 participants raised approximately $800,000 to support breast cancer research and advocacy as well as local breast health programs. One in nine women will be diagnosed with breast cancer in her lifetime, so these programs are likely to benefit someone close to each of us.

In addition to supporting crucial services, walkers honored loved ones who have battled breast cancer, heard inspirational messages from survivors and received critical breast health information. While there were tearful moments, the prevailing mood was of hope and possibility.

None of this would have been possible without the energy and enthusiasm of walkers from throughout the greater Sacramento area. The success of the event is a testament to the power of committed, concerned individuals to make our community an even better place to live. Again, on behalf of the American Cancer Society, thank you, Sacramento. You are truly helping to make strides against breast cancer!

The hearing will be held at city hall, 1350 Halyard Drive, West Sacramento. Interested persons are invited to attend. In compliance with the ADA, if you need assistance to participate in this meeting, you should contact the City Clerk at 373-5800. Notification 72 hours prior to the meeting will enable the City to make reasonable arrangements to assure accessibility to this meeting. City hall is handicapped accessible.
1. Notice is hereby given that the West Sacramento City Council on October 10, 2001, adopted its Resolution 01-102, in which it declared its intention to establish a community facilities district, to establish an appropriations limit for such district, and to levy a special tax to pay for certain services, all pursuant to the provisions of the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act of 1982, Chapter 2.5, Part 1, Division 2, Title 5 of the California Government Code and Chapter 3.32 of the City Municipal Code. The resolution describes the boundaries of the proposed district, the services proposed to be financed, and the rate, method of apportionment, and manner of collection of the proposed special tax. The City proposes to tax all interests in property that may be taxed under the Act. For further details, the resolution is available at the office of the City Clerk, 1350 Halyard Drive, West Sacramento, California.
At the hearing, the testimony of all interested persons or taxpayers for or against the establishment of the district, the extent of the district, or the furnishing of the specified services will be heard.
If (i) 50% or more of the registered voters or six registered voters (whichever is more) residing within the district or (ii) the owners of one-half or more of the area of the land within the district that is not exempt from the special tax file written protests against the establishment of the district, and the protests are not withdrawn so as to reduce the value of the protests to less than a majority, the creation of the district and the tax levy shall not be considered for a period of one year from the date of the decision of the City Council after the hearing. If the majority of the registered voters or the landowners protests only against a specific type of service or a specified tax, then that type of service or tax shall be precluded.
Notice is hereby further given that if, at the conclusion of the public hearing, the City Council determines to establish the district, the City Council will order an election to be held by the qualified electors of the district by mailed ballot, with each such elector having one vote for each acre or portion of an acre owned by the elector, on the questions of levying the special tax and establishing an appropriations limit.
